

The English Language Exam is a computer-based test whose aim is to check if the candidate is a user of English at B-2 level (upper- intermediate). This is the level that is required in the university admission process.

It assesses all four language skills: reading, listening, writing and speaking and contains tasks assessing lexical and grammatical competence.

The broadness of the candidate's vocabulary and grammatical correctness is tested using gap-filling, multiple-choice and multiple matching tasks, sentence correction tasks and sentence transformations.

Reading comprehension tasks are based on matching and rearranging passages and expressions in texts.

Writing and listening skills are tested with open-ended questions. Candidates will also be asked to write a summary based on a recording.

The maximum score for the test is 100 points, the score of 50 (i.e. 50%) or above is considered a "pass".

The exam lasts 90 minutes.

Topics which need to be revised for the test:

GRAMMAR:

adjectives and adverbs

future tenses (future simple, continuous and future perfect)

mixed conditionals

modals – can't have, needn't have modals of deduction and speculation

narrative tenses

passives

phrasal verbs

relative clauses

reported speech

will and going to for prediction

wish

gerund or infinitive

countable and uncountable nouns

articles (the/a/an)

word building (positive and negative prefixes; suffixes)

collocations

prepositional phrases

VOCABULARY:

The vocabulary related to general topics (e.g. current affairs, everyday life, feelings and attitudes etc.) allowing the user to understand the main ideas of complex texts (spoken and written) on both concrete and abstract topics and to produce clear texts and discuss a wide range of subjects.

Please be informed that this is not a certifying